THE GREEN MOSSY TREE

On a bright summer afternoon, I took a stroll in Paradise Park. The sight of a field graced with a long stretch of woods appealed my sight. "Wow, why not dive into the woods!" I said to myself.

A path fluffed with pink shiny droplets of flowers led me into the midst of blossom woods. "Nature is really beautiful today," I thought, glancing at a peculiar tree on which squirrels danced and swayed their tails. 'Cre-ee-eek', the sound of a door opening was heard. I halted instantly and studied my surrounding's. It came from an isolated gnarled tree with stinky green moss on its branches. A bright eye blinding light gleamed from inside the tree. Suddenly, I heard little voices communicating with each other, then the door slammed shut. I continually wondered what and who could be in that small spacious area. Could it be a bird, squirrel or lion? I repeatedly came back to the tree only to find no evidence of what it could be.

After a month of searching, I returned to the same old tree. I knocked on the tree hoping someone will answer the door. After multiple attempts, I was about to leave when I heard 'creek'. It was the door! I turned around and I saw a little mouse. After months of trying, I finally found the answer!
